NRS FPX 6218 Planning for Community and Organizational Change

When planning for community and organizational change, it is important to consider the impact the proposed changes will have on the community. This can be done by identifying the main stakeholders involved in the change, assessing their opinions and needs for change and the ways they would like to see it implemented.

Additionally, the proposed changes need to be endorsed by NRS FPX 6218 Planning for Community and Organizational Change and accepted by the community. This can be achieved through people driven policies and collaboration with all stakeholders, as well as the use of technology to promote the change message (Repovs et al., 2019).

This assessment should include a discussion of the financial implications and how it will impact the community, as well as a presentation explaining the impacts on community health and how the proposed change will help to improve that.
